

GENOPHASIC BOOST

DESCRIPTION

The Genophasic therapy is vital in offering the necessary support for correction of multiple body systems due to its overarching effects on so many aspects of the body.

Genophasic therapy is vital to maintaining healthy patients and energetic patients plus it can provide deep core level support from the cells to the body organs. There is no therapy that has been created to combat diathesis stress load until the Genophasics came into existence. Whether the culprit is a malfunctioning neurotransmitter, a misaligned hormone system, stress disorders result from an imbalance in the body's regulatory systems. The fact is that many biochemical imbalances, most likely occurring in the brain and the cells contribute to the problems people are experiencing. These imbalances are an indication that a regulatory system has become impaired in some way. Although it is thought that stress disorders are the result of the body's chemical disturbances, there is no biological diagnostic test to reliably identify all of the metabolic imbalances, but at this point, the Genophasic therapy assists in reducing the metabolic and biologic impact of stress on the human body.
